Part 2: General Principles and Objectives

1. LABC is responsible for ensuring counsel acting in complex criminal legal matters have the expertise to provide quality service to clients, and for ensuring that complex criminal cases are managed effectively while balancing the priorities related to those cases.
2. LABC is responsible for the monitoring and control of case costs in all cases, including those cases where LABC pays enhanced fees and/or an exceptional responsibility premium.
3. LABC may approve the payment of enhanced fees and/or an exceptional responsibility premium for senior legal counsel in particularly complex criminal legal matters in order to compensate counsel for high quality service to clients and effective case management, and to encourage senior legal counsel with criminal law expertise to continue to accept legal aid contracts in complex criminal matters.
4. LABC has sole discretion to determine whether enhanced fees and/or or an exceptional responsibility premium will be paid to senior legal counsel. The rate of compensation reflects the cost and complexity of the case, and the level of skill required to effectively manage the case.
5. Senior legal counsel, who receive enhanced fees and/or an exceptional responsibility premium, are expected to bring skill and experience to manage the case efficiently and to work effectively with LABC and the case management process. This includes the capacity and willingness to engage with LABC Criminal Case Management policy and procedures.

Part 3: Policy Application

This policy applies to all cases where LABC is responsible for the administration of the funding for defence services in criminal matters pursuant to the MOU between LABC and the Ministry of Justice, whether at trial or on appeal, and includes court-ordered appointments of counsel, e.g., amicus curiae. This policy also applies to cases administered by LABC pursuant to a funding agreement with the Department of Justice.

Part 5: Case Requirements

1. The criminal legal matter must be subject to Criminal Case Management, or be a complex criminal law appeal.
2. Enhanced fees may be available for senior legal counsel representing a legal aid client facing what LABC considers a complex criminal matter. The matter must be a complex criminal law appeal or a CCM case where the general preparation approved or anticipated to be approved by LABC, should the matter proceed to trial, is in excess of 300 hours.
3. An exceptional responsibility premium may be available for senior legal counsel on a CCM case that is exceptionally costly, complex and serious.
4. LABC will assess the relative cost and complexity of the CCM case to determine whether it justifies senior legal counsel being paid enhanced fees and/or an exceptional responsibility premium. The factors assessed include:
  - a. the factors for budget setting listed in Part 5, section 2 of the LABC Criminal Case Management policy,
  - b. the length and nature of the police investigation,
  - c. whether co-accused have antagonistic defences,
  - d. whether the case involves new and emerging areas of forensic evidence beyond what would be expected in this type of trial,
  - e. whether the case raises complex admissibility issues,
  - f. whether the case involves historical charges or historic sections of the Criminal Code of Canada,
  - g. whether the case includes multiple counts involving different facts, and
  - h. whether the case is receiving intense public attention.

  - b. whether counsel has demonstrated his or her ability to deal with the complexities of the case;
  - c. whether counsel brings the skill, experience, capacity and technical infrastructure to efficiently and effectively manage the case as outlined in LABC Criminal Case Management policy and procedures; and
  - d. counsel's prior history of working with LABC and compliance with LABC Criminal Case Management.

  - a. counsel satisfies the requirements for enhanced fees; and
  - b. counsel has the executive management skills to effectively manage and be accountable for the significant demands of the exceptionally costly, complex and serious CCM case for which the application is made.
2. In assessing an application for an exceptional responsibility premium, LABC also will consider the following factors:
  - a. whether Crown Counsel is being paid in “Recognition of Exceptional Responsibilities” pursuant to Article 31 of the British Columbia Crown Counsel Association Agreement with Respect to Crown Counsel (“the CCAA”) or a successor to the CCAA; and
  - b. any other relevant factors that may justify senior legal counsel being paid an exceptional responsibility premium.

      - ii. details of the volume and nature of disclosure,
      - iii. short overviews of any legal argument counsel intends to make, and

Part 9: Application Processing and LABC Decision-Making

1. Under this part, a decision about enhanced fees may be made by the Manager, Criminal, Immigration and Appeals, or his or her designate, but a decision about an exceptional responsibility premium may be made only by the Manager, Criminal, Immigration and Appeals.
2. Upon receipt of the information listed in Part 8, the Manager will review the information and may, based on material received, make a decision on the application.
3. Prior to making a decision, the Manager may request additional information from the applicant and/or consult with experienced criminal legal counsel, as the Manager deems appropriate, to assist in assessing the merits of the application.
4. At the Manager's discretion, the Manager may convene a conference call between LABC staff, experienced criminal legal counsel and the applicant to consider the application.

The Manager will decide whether and for what work enhanced fees and/or an exceptional responsibility premium will be paid to the applicant. The Manager will provide the applicant with a written decision with reasons.
7. The date from which enhanced fees and/or an exceptional responsibility premium will be paid is the date of the written decision, unless otherwise indicated.
8. An applicant, who has received a decision under this Part, may request a review of that decision under Part 12 of this policy.

Part 10: Defence Teams

1. Where there is more than one defence lawyer on the case and enhanced fees and/or an exceptional responsibility premium are approved for senior legal counsel, LABC will determine whether other lawyer(s) on the defence team should receive the regular tiered rate or an enhanced fee rate as set out in the LABC Tariffs, and/or an exceptional responsibility premium.
2. In assessing the rate to be paid, LABC will consider each lawyer's skills, experience and assigned tasks to determine a rate of compensation that is commensurate with his or her role on the case and that meets the principles and objectives of this policy. Junior counsel is not required to have a specific number of years of practice experience to qualify for junior counsel enhanced fee rates or an exceptional responsibility premium.
3. The enhanced fee rate or exceptional responsibility premium is personal to the approved senior legal counsel or lawyer and cannot be transferred to another lawyer.
